

The Stonehenge School

Striving for excellence, exceeding expectation

Prefect Training

On Wednesday 18th of July the prefect team went on a training course at Totton College.

We took part in different team games: we did a role play which involved acting out different situations and deciding how to resolve the problem; we built boats out of newspaper and we had to see who could make the biggest mast.

The day was a success. It is another good reason for becoming a prefect. If you get the opportunity, you should go along to Totton College; it's a good day out.

By Aaron Hammond Stonehenge School Journalist